M: What time do you come home from the pharmacy?

F: I usually come home in time for the children's breakfast. I eat with them, too.

M: So breakfast in your house is actually your dinner!

M: It is. But the sink and the toilet in that bathroom are white. I don't think blue goes with them.

F: Actually, you're right. . . . And, wow, look at the price. It's very expensive. Let's keep looking.

M: Jill! Look at this one! It's white, not too expensive, and it comes with a shower too!

F: It's perfect!

Lesson 1, Page 93, Ex. G-H

M: Hey, Mara. Let's find an apartment for the week in Cairo. I'm on Super B and B.

F: OK! Let's look. Remember: we need something good for kids.

M: OK. . . . Cairo. . . . Two bedrooms . . . Here's one. It's really good looking . . . But, oh, it has only one bedroom. There's a sofa bed in the living room.

F: Oh, Tom. That's no good. Let's keep looking.

M: Oh, look! Here's another one. . . . Two bedrooms. One bath. That's fine. Look at the picture.

F: It looks nice. Oh, look! It has a large kitchen. And there's a microwave.

M: Great. We can make breakfast, or even dinner if we need to.

F: Is there a picture of the bathroom?

M: Let me see. Yes, there is.

F: What does it have? Is there a bathtub, or just a shower?

M: It has both! That's great for the kids. They like to take baths.

F: Right. Let's look at the living room. Is there a TV?

M: There is. But it's kind of small. Uh-oh. There's a balcony! What do you think?

F: Well, I'm not sure. . . . Eric's only four years old.

M: True, but there's a door to the balcony. I think it's OK.

F: I guess you're right. Oh, another question—what floor is the apartment on?

M: Let's see. Oh. It's on the fourth floor.

F: Let's check to see if there's an elevator. We definitely need one!

M: There is. You know—I think it's perfect!

F: I agree!

Lesson 2, Page 95, Ex. C

1

We have a gorgeous new rug in here between the bed and the dresser. Now we need a new lamp. I always read in here at night. What room am I in?

2

I'm in a room in my house. On the desk, there's a computer and a printer. I work in here from early morning to late afternoon. What room am I in?

3

I'm in a room in my apartment. There's a sink and a shower, but there's no bathtub. I brush my teeth in this room every day after I get up and before I go to bed. What room am I in?

4

My whole family loves this room. Every night after we wash the dishes, my wife and I sit on the sofa and read a book. Sometimes our kids watch TV on the other side of the room. What room am I in?

5

I wash the dishes in this room every day after dinner. There's a sink but there's no shower. There's also a table and four chairs in here. We always eat breakfast and lunch in this room. What room am I in?

6

There's a small table and four chairs. We eat dinner in here, but not breakfast. The family usually eats breakfast in the kitchen. But I'm sometimes late and I eat breakfast in my office at the bank. What room am I in?

Lesson 4, Page 99, Ex. D

M: Kate, I have a question.

F: Sure, Ethan, what's up?

M: What kind of house do you like?

F: Well, if they're not too expensive, I prefer large houses, like my house. In any case, my family needs a large house.

M: Really? Why is that?

F: Well, first, we're a pretty large family—we have five children. And my husband's parents live with us.

M: So, let's see, how many people is that? . . . Wow, that's nine people. You totally do need a large house.

F: Actually, that's not all. There's also a student from Russia with us this year—Igor. We have another bedroom on the second floor of the garage. Igor sleeps there. So that makes ten people.

M: But you and your husband go to work every day. What time do you get home at night?

F: Well, we work far from home, so we take the train. Sometimes we get home at eight o'clock because the trains are awful.

M: So who makes dinner?

F: We're lucky! My husband's parents do that. There's a nice dinner every night when we come home. Another good thing is that they're both there when the children come home after school.

M: Where is your house?

F: It's near here. It's a great location and a great neighborhood. There's a small supermarket right down the street. We can walk there. And there's a park nearby, too. The kids love that park. They go there after school with their grandparents two or three days a week.

MEGAN: Sorry, Dusty.

BRITT: Yeah.

PRISHA: But now we have no dinner.

ANDY: And I'm hungry. What do we do?
