WHAT DID SHE RECENTLY LEARN HOW TO DO?

Eating Pizza Like a New Yorker

Every time I'm at the New York City office, I like to try something new for lunch. Yesterday, I checked out a famous pizza place with some co-workers and learned the secret of eating pizza like a New Yorker. Here's what I found out.

To begin with, you have to choose what kind of pizza you want right away. Most pizza places in New York City sell pizza by the slice. They keep their pizza inside a glass case near the front door. So, you have to step up to the case and tell the clerk what kind of pizza you want and how many slices you need. Sometimes, you have to wait for the clerk to warm them up. Once your slices are ready, you can take them to an empty table and sit down.

Next, you need to decide if you want to add any of the extra toppings at the table to your pizza. A lot of pizza places provide red pepper flakes, parmesan cheese, and black pepper. I like to add a little parmesan cheese to my slices. This makes them taste even cheesier!

After that, you have to figure out how to hold each slice so you can eat it. There are a couple of different ways to do this. For example, you can simply fold it in half from one side of the crust to the other. You can also bend it in half by pushing down on the middle of the crust with one finger. Then you can put your other fingers underneath to support it. Just never, ever, cut it with a knife and fork!

Last but not least, make sure you enjoy what you're eating. New Yorkers put a lot of effort into making great pizza, and they're really proud of their work. So, the least you can do is show that you loved every bite.

As you can see, it's really not that hard to eat pizza like a New Yorker. It just takes a little practice. Now that I know how, I can't wait to go back and try out some of the other famous pizza places in the city.

EXPLAIN THE PROCESS.

Create breakout rooms and have the Ss do the task.

Read the directions aloud. Then have Ss complete the task as homework.

Write a blog about something that you have recently learned how to do. Be sure to include at least three steps. Remember to use words and phrases to show the sequence of events. Use the blog in 1B as a model.

Pre-writing tip

Make a mental image of each step in the process. This will help you to explain the steps clearly and completely.
