Flavio V ★★☆☆☆

I went to see Hunted this weekend, and I thought it was awful! I felt like I wasted two hours and twelve dollars.

First of all, the plot sounds exciting, but it is actually very predictable. Carla, an ordinary woman—a high school teacher—is chased by a group of bad men. We don't know who they are, and we don't know why they are chasing her. As the movie goes on, you find out more and more about Carla's past, and how she is connected to these men. Of course, it turns out that she isn't so ordinary after all. By the time the movie reveals the "surprise", it isn't much of a surprise. I knew exactly what was going to happen in the end.

The star of the movie is Pia Andrade, an actress I usually like a lot. Her acting in this movie is good—she is the reason I gave the movie two stars instead of just one. While the role she plays in this movie is very silly, Andrade makes the character realistic. Still, with her talent, I think she should play more serious roles.

This is the second movie that was directed by Oscar Lombard. I loved his first movie, Awaken. It had an interesting, surprising plot, and the acting was great. In contrast, Hunted is a real disappointment. Let's hope his next movie is better!

2 FOCUS ON WRITING

Read the Writing Skill. Then read Flavio's review again. Underline the words and sentences that show a contrast to what he expected.

WRITING SKILL Use contrast to express your opinion

Sometimes, when you express your opinion, you can make it stronger by saying how it is different from what you expected. Use contrast words like but, however, while, although, in contrast, on the other hand, and despite to express these contrasts.
